FIELD ITINERARY · FROM MUNICH

Setzberg via Wallberg

A ridge walk, a chapel and Tegernsee below.

YOUR CONNECTIONS

Munich — RB57 — Tegernsee — BUS 356 — Valley station — CABLE CAR — Upper station — WALK — Setzberg

1 Munich → Tegernsee → Wallbergbahn

RB57: normally just over 1 h · change to bus 356

Use a Deutschland-Ticket or Bayern-Ticket for the regional train and bus. Check for replacement buses and choose a service stopping at Wallbergbahn.

2 Ride up, then visit Wallbergkirchl

Cable car ~15 min · chapel ~5 min on foot

Buy the cable-car return ticket separately. Take a moment for the chapel and the lake view; give grazing cows plenty of room.

3 Past Altes Wallberghaus to Setzberg

50 min from the upper cable-car station to Setzberg

Follow the signs towards Setzberg. The final climb is steep and can be muddy; wear hiking shoes and bring poles.

4 Setzberg summit · 1,706 m

Take a break, keeping time for the return

Enjoy the views towards Risserkogel and Tegernsee. I lingered for nearly three hours; do that only if your return plan allows it.

5 Retrace the path, then ride down

Return by the same path · check the last cable car

Return via Altes Wallberghaus. Summer closing: 17:00; from 25 Oct 2026, 16:30. Reach the station with a buffer.

6 Tegernsee, then back to Munich

Bus 356 → Tegernsee · RB57 → Munich (~1 h in normal service)

If time allows, finish by the lake or in a beer garden. Keep a spare connection in your plan: my buses were crowded both ways.

Train + bus: Deutschland-Ticket or Bayern-Ticket; Bayern-Ticket weekdays from 09:00. Wallbergbahn costs extra: adult return €28; one way €15 (2026).

Haki tip — sunscreen and poles. The summit is exposed and the last climb can be slippery. I forgot sunscreen and regretted it that evening. Start early enough to enjoy the views without rushing back.

Planning guide based on my visit: 19 Sept 2026 · Checked 9 Oct 2026.
BRB / bus disruptions: check live connections. Cable car closed 9 Nov–4 Dec 2026.
